High drug prices

The United States is the country with the highest total drug spending and also with the highest per capita pharmaceuticals spending among developed countries.

Where the money is spent

Nearly half of all Americans have taken at least one prescription medicine within the preceding month. The therapeutic areas where spending is the highest generally are for antidiabetics, oncologics, autoimmune and respiratory diseases. Based on number of prescriptions filled, antihypertensives, pain relievers and mental health drugs are the leading classes.
